Outlook for Friday through Wednesday:

Generally lighter winds are currently expected through the weekend, but locally breezy seasonal winds and elevated fire weather concerns are still expected. Sundowner winds of 25 to 35 mph are expected to continue through Sunday for portions of southern California.

Building high pressure across California will increase temperatures late week into the weekend. Temperatures will peak 10 to 15 degrees above normal for northern California Sunday and Monday and about 5 degrees above normal across southern California. Drier weather is expected statewide through Saturday, with monsoonal moisture potentially returning to southern California as early as Sunday. The chance of isolated showers and thunderstorms may reach as far west as the LA Mountains and as far north as I-80 across the northern Sierras by Tuesday. Significant precipitation is not expected at this time except for potentially southeastern California.

Red Cross

- Tuesday night, the Red Cross and our partners cared for about 850 Californians seeking refuge from wildfires in about 25 emergency shelters, which includes locations where people have chosen to stay outside in RVs or tents. Since June, we've provided more than 14,700 overnight stays for people in need.
- Since the fires began, more than 800 Red Cross disaster workers have supported relief efforts in person or virtually.
- About 330 disaster responders are still active across the state supporting the current relief operations.
- With the help of partners, the Red Cross has provided more than 44,000 of meals and snacks and distributed 2,500 relief items including comfort kits, fire kits, and other supplies to help people in need.
- Trained Red Cross volunteers are helping evacuees cope as they await news about whether they will have a home to return to.
- Volunteers are also replacing prescription medications, eyeglasses, or critical medical equipment, like canes and wheelchairs, that were left behind in the rush to get to safety. Volunteers have already made nearly 11,000 contacts providing emotional support, health services and spiritual care for people who've been evacuated.
